Now With F.M.L.

Congress is getting the cattleman off the meat hook as market prices point the industry toward the cooler.

House legislation, compatible with Small Business Administration policy, will allow cattlemen up to $350,000 at local interest rates to recoup during the price squeeze. The Senate approved a $1 million limit.

Sec. of Agriculture Earl Butz foresaw a relatively small number of cattlemen going under.

Administration efforts are underway to boost Canadian sales of American beef. Butz favors voluntary import reduction otherwise, but acknowledges the U. S. may be compelled to stop foreign beef imports.

The most telling influence on the problem, however, was cited by David Stroud, president of the National Livestock and Meat Board, saying:

"The consumer won't buy our way out, but will eat their way out."

And that depends upon whether consumers continue to want their grain through steak or decide to eat more cereal through the day.

Under-developed countries eat rice and wheat and corn directly, and want the better nourishment and taste of American beef, if they can afford it.

They are buying more beef or in effect eating their grain through increased beef consumption.

But it still requires more income to eat beef, compared to the cost of grain stuffs.

It is likely we'll end up exporting more and eating less here until world economics further broadens beef demand beyond anything now foreseeable. And then the price may come down, even through the processors.

North Fork Dam Tunnel Blasted For River Bypass

The North Fork Dam outlet tunnel resounded to its last dynamite charge last week and was declared by U. S. Corps of Engineers to be 24 percent complete.

The tunnel will carry the diverted waters of the San Gabriel River during the construction of the North Fork Dam and later will send water downstream in accordance with Texas Water Rights requirements.

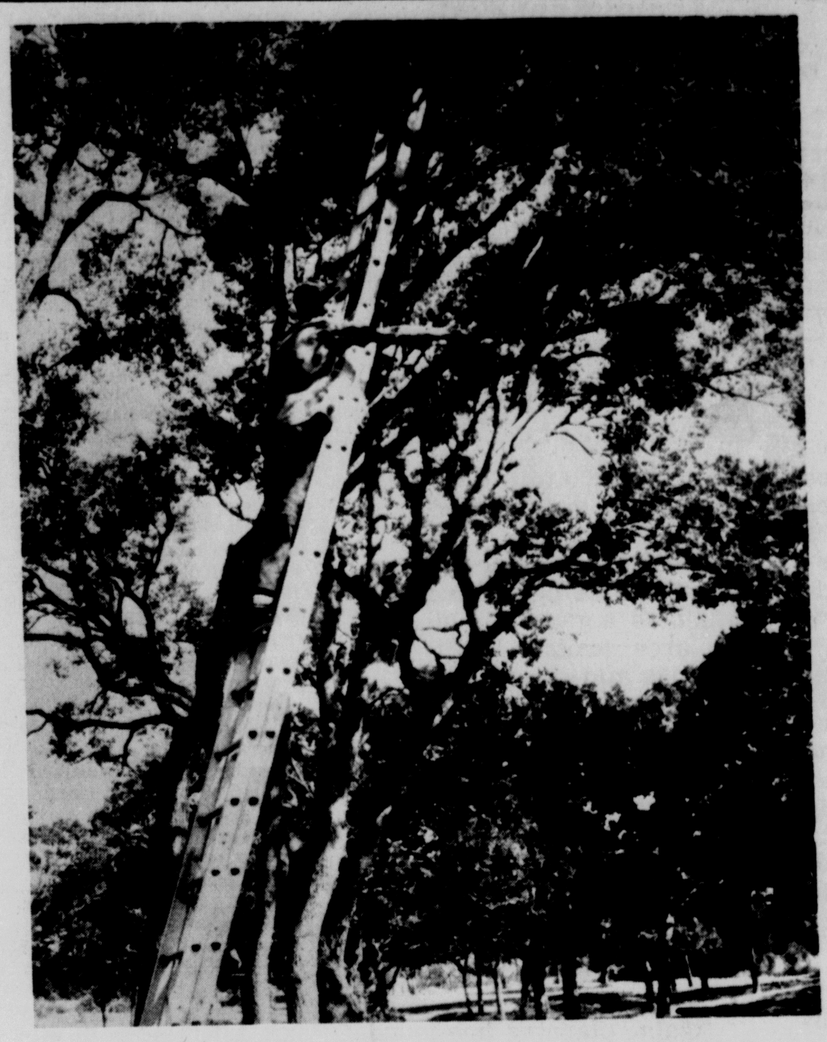
Blasting began at each end of the 1233 - feet tunnel and met in the middle with a 14-foot diameter long curving cavity. Work will now begin to scale the loose rock and round the bottom of the tunnel which men and machines have been working. A lining of concrete will then be put into the tunnel and the result will be an eleven foot diameter perfect round tunnel.

The balance of the outlet works project will proceed full speed ahead installing hydraulic slide gates and operating equipment, sluice gates, intake tower, concrete stilling basin, steel trash racks, bulkheads, electrical work and diesel-electric generating unit.

North Fork Lake will be a long meandering lake following the natural terrain of the ranch country, using natural bluffs for its banks wherever possible. It will extend from the First Booty's Crossing to the Fourth Booty's crossing and at flood stage it will back up to Highway 183. The conservation pool (or lake proper) will cover 1310 acres of surface area.

The drainage area of the dam will take in 246 miles. The dam will be 1.3 miles across, 165 feet at its highest point and 40 feet across the top. Its maximum depth will be 92 feet and its outflow will be controlled by two 5 x 11 feet slide gates.

Total cost of the porject is $21.3 million.



WILD GROWTH is being tamed somewhat in Wilson - Ledbetter Park this summer with tree trimming going on full scale. This is part of a program aimed at renovating the old park to boost its usage by local residents.

SHARP RISE SEEN IN HOG MARKET

Hog sellers had a pleasant surprise Thursday as prices rose sharply for barrows and gilts and half as much for sows at the Cameron Livestock Auction.

Barrows and gilts were $10 a hundred higher and sows rose $5 a hundred. The market had been down along with cattle prices, which also rose, but slightly, at the auction.

Receipts totaled 404 hogs with a few US 1-2 bringing $34.80 to $35.25. Other grades brought $34.25 to $34.90. Sows were selling at $22.25 up to $28.75.

In the cattle market only 300 animals were offered for sale. Slaughter cows were 50 to $1 higher and slaughter calves were $1 higher. Steer calves gained 50 cents and feeder heifers and heifer calves were $1 higher.

Choice feeder steers brought $32 to $37 and good brought $30 to $34. Feeder heifers were $32 to $35 while prices for slaughter cattle ranged from $20 for canners to $37 for calves.

The auction report said buying attendance was large. The run included around 20 percent slaughter cows, five percent slaughter calves and bulls with the remainder mostly good feeder cattle and calves.

Catastrophic War May Mean Mankind's End

By Albert Clack

BUENOS AIRES

Reuter -- Ecologists who warn that the world will end with the gradual dwindling of raw materials, increasing famine and pollution, may be giving an optimistic view of how long mankind will last on earth.

Long before that, war on a catastrophic scale could wipe us out, unless there is a major review of how the world's wealth is shared, according to a lengthy study by a group of Latin American scientists.

This is one of their findings in a study called "The Latin American World Model," undertaken by Argentina's Barilocne Foundation, a non-profit making, independent, scientific research organization.

It was commissioned by the Eueopean Economic Market and its deductions are backed by an awesome catalogue of computerized mathematics.

They calculate that continental conflicts are a greater threat to the world than pollution, starvation or shrinking resources.

The warning of destructive wars comes in an introduction to a progress report on the study, and its conclusions had already been checked, a spokesman said.

"The obstacles to a harmonious development of mankind are not material, at least not in the foreseeable future, but socio-political, and they depend on the present distribution of power at international and national level," the report says.

"This can be seen in the growing inequality between and within countries.

"If these tendencies persist," the report concludes ominously, "Mankind will suffer a real catastrophe, long before any limitation in the ecosystem becomes evident."

The report warns that the increasing pressure exerted by waht it calls "the excluded masses" -- those whose daily life is already a fight for any kind of happiness or even survival -- would probably lead to the break up of the international system through a series of conflicts on continental dimensions.

The report states that much of mankind already lives in conditions of misery and it challenges studies made in industrialized countries which dwell on ecological doom.

"Hunger, illiteracy, premature death, lack of adequate housing -- in other words, miserable living conditions -- are the common destiny shared by the greater part of the population of developing countries," it says.

"It is not necessary to wait 80 or 100 years until the effects of the eventual exhausation of natural resources or of the increase of pollution reach the large centers of developed countries, to become aware of this catastrophe."

Build Anew...

The City's endorsement of an additional three-block urban renewal program is only continuing what was originally planned in the mid-60s, roughly those three blocks across to US 77 - #SH 36 or East Fourth St.

So it is not a new renewal proposal which is being approved, but part of the original, and now more critical than ever. Those blocks are in greater contrast to all the improvements within eyesight or across the street.

We understand $100,000 is coming from funds left in Lubbock to be used in that area. We know there is another $60,000 to $70,000 left over from the first project here.

Planning is underway on the West Cameron project, which is a generally blighted area around the O. J. Thomas mid-school.

Neither project is new. Evaluation of programs in the West Cameron area are at least five years old.

That area between downtown and East Fourth is being rebuilt largely by individuals who see now that things are going to roll for years.

Again, planning has found the support to do what is obvious. Build anew.

Sense Of History

Unity of history, if not idealogy, was the note last week when envoys were exchanged between West and East Germany.

The West German Parliament also approved the last element of Willy Brandt's "Ostpolitik" in non-agression pact with Czechoslovakia. Brandt's eastern detente won him a Nobel Peace Prize in 1971. He recently resigned during a scandal in his government.

New West German chancellor Guenter Gaus carried the Brandt policy to completion in the exchange of envoys in joint ceremonies in Bonn, West Germany and East Berlin.

Thus, the effort to unify trade relations between the two Germanys has begun, while political loyalties still turn due West and due East.

We wonder how long it will be before the mysterious sense of history will bring the two even closer? Even Hitler was able to use it in Southern Europe.

Secret Police On Wanted List

By Michael Lockley

LISBON

Reuter -- Portugal's dreaded secret police, the hunters of government opponents for nearly half a century, are now the hunted and the trapped.

Hundreds of agents are sitting behind the same prison bars, if not in the same notorious cells, as their former captives.

Others have either fled abroad or are on the run from the country's new rulers who disbanded the hated DGS (Directorate General of Security) soon after the military coup here which swept away the rightweing regime of Dr. Marcello Caetano and paved the way for a return to democracy.

Portuguese watch, still with a mixture of awe and satisfaction, as the names of fugitive DGS men are flashed across the television screens or their photographs appear in the press in a kind of rogue's gallery.

About 900 agents have been arrested by the armed forces, including the organization's former chief, Major Fernando Silva Pais, but dozens more are still being sought. They include alleged tourturers.

As the hunt continues, the newspapers carry many paid advertisements -- or "Declarations" -- from citizens disclaiming any connection with the DGS, which had a vast network of informers.

One typical advertisement, accompanied by a photograph, said: "I, Amilcar de Oliveira Machado, resident in Palmela and official at the town hall, publicly declare that I was never an informer of the disbanded DGS, as alleged by ill-willed people and slanderers without scruples." "These people, he added, had confused his professional mission with his political convictions.

Other declarations have come from apartment house porters, waiters in restaurants, and employees of large private and state enterprises.

The new military junta, which appointed a civilian provisional government three weeks after the coup, has appealed to the population to report the whereabouts of DGS members, but warned against witchhunts and the danger of allegations based on personal spite, rather than facts.

The agents who went to ground after the April 25 coup, were given a deadline to report to the military authorities. It ran out on May 18, and those now caught face stiff penalties.

The lifting of press censorship and the new open attitude of the authorities has opened publicly a Pandora's box of information on torture and inhumane conditions in Portugal's jails, both at home and in the overseas territories of Angola, Mozambique and Portuguese Guinea.

The DGS was armed with sweeping powers of arrest and detention. They also alledgedly directed crack commando groups operating in the overseas territories, and elite para-military riot police in metropolitan Portugal.

Reporters can visit the cells and interrogation rooms in the former political jails, especially the Caxias prison near Lisbon. The contain torture instruments such as whips, electrical prods, and coiled steel springs used for beating.

During the regime of former Prime Minister Antonio Salazar and his successor, Dr. Caetano, allegations of torture and mistreatment were always strenuously denied. Frequently they were termed communist propaganda.

Some of the names scribbled on the walls of cells go back decades. The walls themselves are sometimes false, with microphones and other surveillance equipment hidden in the cavities.

The huge DGS files shown to reporters, show a gradual trend from open brutality to more subtle psychological methods of interrogation. One increasingly favorite method was the "statue" technique, which meant the prisoners standing against a wall until he dropped down exhausted only to be hauled or beaten back to his fee, for days or weeks they were deprived of sleep. Sometimes they died.

LETTERS

June 20, 1974

Mr. Luecke:

Through your paper I, would like to make an appeal to the Cameron School Board to have second thoughts about the re-naming of Yoe Field.

Mr. Miller was sent by the Yoemen Booster Club to the school board meeting to ask if the new field house could be named after Mr. L. Van Perkins. Why Mr. Miller got off the track I'll never understand. I hear that you (school board) were thinking of naming the field house after Mr. Oxsheer Smith.

There is to be a new science building that could be named after Mr. Smith. Please consider naming the new field house after Mr. Perkins and let Yoe Field remain Yoe Field - Home of the Fighting Yoemen.

Thank You,
Max Shuemate

High Court Says Legals Need Zip

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Newspapers will have to improve the readability of public notice advertising, or face the possibility of losing it, the National Newspaper Association warned its 6,300 members today.

The warning came in the wake of a U. S. Supreme Court decision which referred to shortcomings of many public notices. Cited were the tradition of using small type, placement on back pages, and lack of any provisions for calling the notice to the attention of the readers.

The case (Eisen v. Carlisle and Jacquelin) involved Constitutional requirements for notifying 2,225,000 investors in a class action suit.

A lower court approved the plan to notify 7,000 stockholders by mail and the remainder by notices in newspapers.

The Supreme Count threw out the plan, holding, in effect, that where there is a federal requirement calling for notice to be given individually, then newspaper publication is not a proper substitute.

The policy implications are dangerous, the NNA noted, in suggesting improved placement and typography for the newspaper public notices in the future.

TB Increasing Over Texas

People think tuberculosis is conquered -- but in Texas the first five months of 1974 show all forms of tuberculosis increased nearly 45 percent over a similar period last year, according to one authority.

She's Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"This figure could be drastically lowered of Texans would take advantage of the tuberculosis control services offered by the State Health Department," the specialist noted.

For free TB testing, persons should visit their county health department, the county health officer, or the regional health office.

If they can't find the testing locations, they should contact the county judge, Dr. Sears added.

Texas' tuberculosis control services program has three aims: 1) detect cases of tuberculosis infection, act've or non-symptomatic; 2) treat persons with active disease; and 3) prevent spread of the disease, the specialist expalined.

"In Texas, tuberculosis is most common and most difficult to control among low-income populations and among people who fail to seek regular medical attention," Dr. Sears said.

"Statistics also show a relationship between tuberculosis and cases of diabetes, alcoholism and other chronic diseases," she added.

"Also, persistence of obsolete ideas, fears and myths about tuberculosis -- such as curing it with a diet of skunk meat -- continues to hamper the fight against tuberculosis," Dr. Sears pointed out.

"Constand, thorough care is the only way to reduce tuberculosis -- from its present status as a continual public health problem to the level of a relatively rare disease," the specialist concluded.

Program To Provide Help For Parolees

AUSTIN

The State Bar of Texas has announced the initiation of a program to provide legal counsel to indigent parolees at parole revocation hearings.

The project which is funded by a grant from the Criminal Justice Division of the Office of the Governor is the newest in a series of public service programs recently initiated by the State Bar of Texas.

When there is reason to cause the Board of Pardons and Paroles to consider revoking an individual's parole an "on-site" hearing is held at the place where the alleged parole violation or arrest occurred.

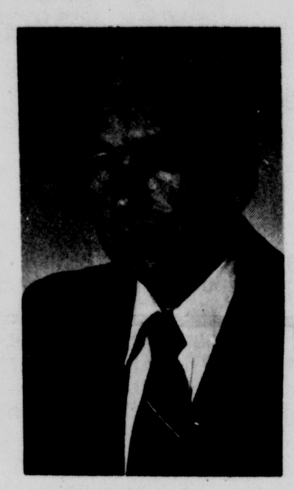
A lawyer will then be provided from the area where the hearing is to be held. The lawyer will receive a nominal fee from the State Bar of Texas but most of his time and effort will be donated on a voluntary basis.

Research Probes Hebrew Language

Research on the revival of Hebrew as the everyday language of the Jews of Israel -- a phenomenon that occurred between 1880 and 1920 -- will take a University of Texas scholar to Jerusalem for a year.

Dr. Aaron Bar-Adon's research is expected to yield valuable insight into early phases of the Hebrew language revival.

In regular visits to Israel he has amassed a large collection of tape recordings of "old-timers" who recall the reactivation of Hebrew, which was the language of Jewish synagogues and schools -- but not of the home and street -- from 200 A.D. to 1880.



JOINS CLUB -- C. L. Valentine, atomizer superintendent at Alcoa's Rockdale Works, has been inducted into Aluminum Company of America's 25-year Club. He becomes the 23rd local member of the company-wide organization composed of 24,000 Alcoans.

"And this makes it $90 million," says 6-year-old Alex Mera, as he hands UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim a check for $7,696,000 payable to the United Nations Children's Fund. The contribution brings to more than $90 million the total raised by the U.S. Committee for UNICEF in the past 21 years from the annual "Trick or Treat" collection by American youngsters on Halloween, the sale of UNICEF greeting cards, and individual and corporate gifts. Rachel Boschen, 4, expresses her approval of helping children of the developing world through UNICEF.

Vows Unite Janacek-Kopriva

Miss Virginia Ann Janacek became the bride of Edward Lee Kopriva Saturday, June 22, at St. Monica's Catholic Church in Cameron.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe J. Janacek and the bride-groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kopriva Sr. of Cameron.

The Rev William Benish officiated and Mrs. Thomas Dusek of Cameron presented organ music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of lined silk organza with Venice and re-embroidered alencon lace and pearl trim. The molded empire bodice featured a high ruffle neck, bishop sleeves and ruffled cuffs. A lace edged flounce hemline swept to a full chapel train.

Her cathedral length English net mantilla veil was outlined in alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of white and blue carnations.

Manila To Host Miss Universe

By Honorato Blanco

MANILA

Reuter -- The Philippines is preparing a gala show fit for the world's most beautiful women when it hosts the 1974 Miss Universe Beauty Pageant in July.

Conscious of being the first Asian country to stage the prestigious contest, tourism secretary Jose Aspiras is confident that The Philippines "will have something to show the whole world.

The "Sari-Manoak," totem bird of a moslem tribe in the Southern Philippines has been chosen as the symbol of this year's contest.

The tourism department has chosen 200 beautiful girls to act as usherettes during the festivities.

"They are the country's most beautiful, most charming and most intelligent girls," says Mr. Aspiras.

Over 70 participants from all over the world arrived here before the end of May for a scheduled tour, before the pageant, of this southeast Asian archipelago republic of 40 million.

The contest will be held at a 10,000-seat folk arts theater erected on reclaimed land on Manila Bay.

Built for the contest, the theater will be inaugurated July 7.

Two weeks later, on July 21, the reigning Miss Universe, Marta Margarita Oran of The Philippines, will crown her successor in a ceremony timed for live, evening television transmission to the United States and Europe.

The inauguration of the theater will be marked by a grand parade by some 20,000 people. It will depict Filipino culture in songs, dances and costumes showing Spanish and American influence.

Mr. Aspiras says half of the available seats at the theater have been reserved for provincial governors and their constituents -- at popular prices to insure wide national participation.

"It will not be only for the elite and the influential," he said.

While weather men are consulting their charts in July, when the monsoon season normally begins, officials are praying for clear skies during the parade and the finals.

Since Filipino girls started competing in international beauty contests, they have established an impressive record.

This country has so far produced two Miss International and two Miss Universe winners.

Safe Boating Week Proclaimed

Governor Dolph Briscoe has proclaimed the week of June 30 through July 6 Safe Boating Week in Texas.

The Texas Safety Association, along with boating groups across the State, urged Texans to pay special attention to boating safety during the July Fourth holiday when water traffic is always heavy.

The official proclamation pointed out that there are now 432,558 boats registered in Texas. "This increase in recreational craft greatly intensifies the water safety problem," reads the proclamation, "It is imperative that all boatmen observe the basic rules of boating safety if we are going to keep the loss of life and property at a minimum."

In 1973 there were 74 boating deaths in Texas. Sixty-five of these contributed to drownings. Deaths like these can be prevented, according to TSA officials, if boaters will take the simple precaution of wearing a personal flotation device.

At least half of the recreational drowning victims in the United States last year never intended going into the water in the first place. Either they were involved in a boat sinking or they slipped, tripped or fell into the water. Most of these "suprise victims" were not wearing a flotation device -- and none was handy.

Keeping personal flotation devices handy not only makes good sense safety - wise, but Texas law requires that on recreational boats sixteen feet and longer, there must be a Coast Guard approved wearable device for each person aboard. In addition, one throwable device must be carried.

For smaller boats and all canoes and kayaks, one bouyant cushion is required for each person on board. However, the Coast Guard recommends the use of wearable devices.

TSA also urged Fourth of July boaters to begin thinking safety on the way to the water. Familiarize yourself with the basic rules of boat trailoring, buckle your safety belt, observe the 55 mph speed limit and have a good holiday, says the safety program.

NEW SPORT of tractor pulling is gaining attention all over the state. A pull is scheduled as one of the events during the Heart O' Texas Fair June 29-30. Here Johnnie Sicking, a Gainesville farmer, shows his big powerful A/C 190 XT tractor. This tractor, which is equipped with special tires, develops 300 horsepower. Sicking will compete with other experienced pullers at the Waco Fair.

"Where does my 'Electric Bill Dollar' go?"

When you pay your Texas Power & Light electric service bill, we hope you think of the many comforts, conveniences and pleasures electricity helps make possible.

But, we're frequently asked—and maybe you've been wondering—"Where does my 'electric bill dollar' go?"

Let's take a look at the 1973 dollar.

Out of every dollar received from every customer last year, 21¢ was used to pay for the fuels needed to generate electric power . . . natural gas, coal and oil.

In 1973, the expenses of running generating plants, keeping plants, lines, trucks and other facilities and equipment in good operating condition, paying the salaries of employees, etc., required 20¢ of each "electric bill dollar".

Another 20¢ of each dollar was needed for federal, state and local taxes. In many of the cities and towns it serves, TP&L is the largest single taxpayer.

Funds to pay interest on the Company's indebtedness and for dividends on preferred and common stock accounted for an additional 22¢ of the 1973 "electric bill dollar".

The remaining 17¢ of the dollar, representing funds set aside for depreciation costs and stockholder earnings not paid out in dividends, was used by the Company for construction of new generating plants, lines and other facilities.

Just as you must budget your income and make adjustments because of rising costs and changing conditions, so must Texas Power & Light. We're tightening our belts . . . looking for ways to produce and supply electricity more efficiently and more economically, while continuing to provide the dependable service you expect for your "electric bill dollar".

Tourists Spending More $$

AUSTIN

Spring visitors spent a whopping amount of money while traveling in Texas -- $547 per average tourist party, more than double the $257 they spent during 1973 --according to a quarterly report just issued by the Texas Highway Department.

Compared to the average daily expenditure of $16.49 per person during 1973, this year's Spring-quarter tourist spent $25.97 each day in Texas. Highway Department spokesmen pointed out that the figures, which are computer tabulations for March, April and May, relate only to auto visitors from out of state.

"We know that inflation is a definite factor," said Tom H. Taylor, director of the Highway Department's tourism division, "But inflation can hardly account for a daily expenditure increase of 57 per cent over 1973."

Taylor said that the increase in the number of days tourists stayed in Texas -- nearly three more days than the average tourist visit last year -- and the increased expenditure are probably due to the energy situation. "People are getting the maximum out of their visits. They're staying longer when they get here, and spending more."

Spring visitor parties spent substantially more for items not related directly to auto, food and lodging expenses. During 1973 those "other" expenses averaged 27 per cent of each tourist dollar. Spring visitors spent 35 percent of their dollars on "other" items.

Taylor called the "other" category of expenditures a vital element.

US Author Gives Up Paris Home

By Mark Blackburn

PARIS

Reuter -- James Jones, author of "From Here to Eternity" and eight other books including one on Vietnam, says he is going home to the United States after living here 16 years.

"Paris has changed a lot since I first came. It's become a lot more conservative. I don't expect I'll ever come back." he said.

He gave many reasons for leaving a place where he has been long and comfortably established. They added up to homesickness.

Now 52, he also said: "I think age is a big factor in wanting to get back home."

And he said: "I just like Americans better than other people . . . you don't feel you're taking your life in your hands every time you go out on the highway."

A short man with a rough face, Jones discussed his impending move in a town house he owns on the Ile St. Louis. The windows look out over trees onto the River Seine.

He is returning to teach writing at Florida International University outside Miami and has taken a home on Key Biscayne, site of the Florida White House.

"The houses there are generally small," he said. "A few have small swimming pools.

"The average income is $60,000 to $80,000 a year," he added. "They're not very rich people." He put his own income at about $60,000.

Jones also said of Key Biscayne: "There are lots of people there who don't know Nixon at all."

Most of the conversation took place at a bar in his living room which appeared to be converted from an old wooden altar.

His current project is a book on World War Two, a subject which has obsessed him since he fought on Guadalcanal with the 25th Infantry Division.

It will complete a trilogy whose first two volumes are "Eternity," as he refers to it, and "The Thin Red Line."

"The war was one of the big experiences of my life," he said. "I'll be finished with it when I finish this book."

In a way, he said, two episodes of his life were coming to an end now -- Paris and the war.

Poverty Income Levels Raised By Labor Dept.

WASHINGTON

Income levels used in federal programs in which being "poor" is an eligibility factor have been raised by from $130 for a nonfarm family of one to $370 for a family of seven, the U.S. Department of Labor announced.

The new income levels reflect the increase in the cost of living since the last criteria were set in July 1973 and will be used immediately.

The revised poverty-level guidelines for nonfarm and farm families will be applied in administering some manpower programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), which provides jobs and training opportunities for the economically disadvantaged, jobless and underemployed persons.

For purposes of manpower program eligibility, a person is considered to be pvor or "disadvantaged" if he or she or the family receives welfare payments or if the annual family income in cash does not exceed the new levels.

Income limits for families of more than seven persons may be determined by adding for the nonfarm and farm levels these amounts for each additional person: $740 and $630 for the Continental U. S., $850 and $720 for Hawaii, and $920 and $780 for Alaska.

The levels are used in Federal programs in which being poor is an eligibility factor. The poverty level guidelines are issued by the Office of Economic Opportunity on an annual or needed basis for use by the various Federal agencies that need a criterion in their programs.

Income levels for families of one through seven persons are shown below

Family Size	Continental U.S. Nonfarm	Farm
1	$2,330	$1,980
2	3,070	2,610
3	3,810	3,240
4	4,550	3,870
5	5,290	4,500
6	6,030	5,130
7	6,770	5,750

Correct Installation Means Trouble-free Septic Tank

A septic tank can operate almost trouble - free for years if it is properly installed and operated, notes Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer in waste management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Septic tanks are the basic means of rural sewage disposal. A septic tank system consists of an underground, water-tight, concrete tank in which bacteria digest household organic solids to liquid and gaseous by-products and a disposal field in which liquid effluent percolates slowly into the soil.

"As long as the bacteria remain viable and there is sufficient time for decomposition and plenty of room for non-biodegradable residue (sludge) accumulations, problems seldom develop," points out the Texas A&M University System specialist.

"Homebuilders sometimes attempt to cut costs by installing inadequate disposal fields. Frequent stoppage might result if the tile drain field is not long enough for complete absorption of effluent by the soil. The length should depend on the infiltration rate of the soil and subsoil, not the price of installation."

A grease trap between the kitchen sink and septic tank is also a characteristic of a good septic tank system, according to Sweeten, It should be opened and cleaned at least twice yearly.

"Sludge should not be allowed to accumulate higher than within 12 inches of the discharge pipe," advises the engineer. "The accumulation of sludge on the bottom reduces the effective holding capacity of a septic tank, which in turn reduces the time for solids to settle and decompose. Undecomposed solids will clog the pores of the disposal system when they are forced out of the tank before proper treatment has been provided. Smaller tanks require more frequent cleanout than larger multi-stage units.

"Although actual cleaning may not be necessary more often than every two or three years, it is best to inspect the tank yearly."

To maintain a healthy environment for the bacteria in a septic tank, Sweeten recommends that certain household chemicals be used sparingly. Anaerobic bacteria, needed to decompose the organic matter, can be killed by abnormally high concentrations of harsh cleansers such as sodium hydroxide and sodium hypochlorite (bleach).
